Risley's Variete.-The last appearance and farewell benefit of that charming actress and vocalist. Mrs. Charles Howard, will take place this evening. During her short engagement, she has endeared herself to the numerous friends and admirers of elegant comedy in this city, by the ex quisite taste and refined conception of her roles.

Those of our citizens who have not had the op portunity of seeing Mrs. Howard, can now avai themselves of the only, and probably the last, opportunity which presents itself. In her style she is as happy as she is original and piquant, and manages her voice with ease, spirit, and force.

It would be unnecessary, in our opinion, to present an elaborate criticism on the most clever im personation, by Mr. Charles Howard, last night. of the character of the "Mysterious Stranger," in the highly interesting drama of Satan in Paris, and the great judgment and inimitable skill with which Mrs. Howard actualized the part of the "Widow Cheerly," in the admirable comedy of the

Mrs. Howard personates, this evening, in the new comedy of Time Tries All, the character of Laura Leeson, and she appears, afterwards, as Margery, in the laughable farce of the Rough Diamond. She will be assisted, on this occasion, by Mr. J. M. Dawson, (of the Broadway Theatre, New York,) who will sustain the character of Cousing

Fuel for the Poor .- In consequence of building operations at the Capitol, during the last eightteen months, hundreds, perhaps thousands, of old barrels (emptied of their contents of lime and cement) had accumulated, and were piled up on various parts of the premises, until they became obstructive to the work there in progress. Of but little or no value, and there being no further use for them, they were given to the poor, a large number of whom, for several days past have supplied themselves plenteously.

The neighborhood of English hill afforded the majority of the participants in this wholesale distribution of barrels and particles of other worthless

Both men and women, together with their children, were seen in every direction, some with wheelbarrows, carrying the fuel to their humble homes. Many a one, too, with a barrel, filled with staves, lashed on the back, with hoops thickly set over the shoulders, and carrying baskets of chips in the hand. Two women, whom we yesterday saw thus ladened, conveyed enough of the material to fill a cart! They jogged along merrily, happy with their good fortune.

While a smile could not be repressed at the novel exhibition, it was gratifying to the heart that these indigent poor people were thus gratuitously supplied with winter fuel.

Warlike .- We are unprepared to say whether or not the recent stirring intelligence from abroad -of fighting between the Turks and Russians, and the conflicts of the rebels and the imperial troops in China-has fanned a belicose spirit in the mids of us, but certain it is, that of late, there have been several personal conflicts; fortunately with no fatal termination. One of those battles, a triangular affair, took place on Thursday night, at a hotel, trucceeding some warm words about a candidate for an office in Congress; and another occurred on Pennsylvania avenue, yesterday afternoon. As to the merits of the controversy we are not fully posted, nor do we care to know them. But severe blows were dealt, and, as a consequence, human forms were levelled for awhile, to the entertain ment of the bystanders. The first fight was in the nature of a spontaneous combustion-unpremeditated; the second had its origin in enmity of long-

A Bloomer .-- Among the promenaders of the of the avenue, yesterday afternoon, was a young lady from the north, in the celebrated Bloomer costume. She was accompanied by a gentleman who, report says, is her father. As, we presume, she will again be seen in public, a description of dress in print is unnecessary. It is reasonable to suppose that they who are disposed to imitate the style will consult the fashion plates. On so delicate a subject we need not express an opinion. further than to say that the garb is better suited to single ladies than to married ones, because every husband prefers himself to wear the trousers

The Coat Case.-We have already stated that, several weeks ago, while Mr. Hinton, a merchant tailor, was passing along Seventh street, he recognized on the back of a young man, named Thomas F. Hardiman, an overcoat, valued at thirty-five dollars, which was stolen from him nearly two years ago! The journeyman who made the garment swore to the article; but a cousin of the accused testified, under oath, that be was with Hardiman two years and a half ago, in Utica, New York, and saw him buy the coat in that city; and not only this, but that the coat had precisely the marks by which Mr. Hinton was enabled to recoguse it as his property!

Justice Donn postponed a decision in this case until yesterday; and, notwithstanding the remonstrances of the two lawyers acting for the accused, required him to give bail for his appearance at the approaching term of the criminal court.

Italian Opera.-We learn that Mr. Risley has ust returned from the north, having, while there, effected an engagement with De Vries's Italian Opera company, with its magnificent costume, or-chestra, etc., for a few nights. This troupe will perform every alternate night, and will open on he 19th instant.

We are also pleased to learn that Mr. Risley has engaged the beautiful and charming American danseuse, Miss Gertrude Dawes, who has created such enthusiasm in New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore.

The Hon. Thomas H. Benton has selected he seat which was occupied by the late John Q. dams in the House of Representatives.

Dry Goods.-A splendid assortment has just een received by Mr. E. S. Tate, Pennsylvania evenue, four doors from the Centre market, south side. Such a choice selection will, of course, be examined by those who desire to purchase not only good articles, but at reasonable prices.

Printer's Strike.-The type setters in the Printer's Strike.—The type setters in the principal newspaper establishments of Cincinnati, composing what is termed the Typographical Union, are on a strike—demanding au increase of wages, and material changes in the established rules of their employers. The Sun and Times conceded to all the demands, and the Enquirer consented to the terms, but under protest against some of the regulations adopted by the "Union." These offices thus retained their employees, but the Gazette. regulations adopted by the "Union." These offices thus retained their employees, but the Gazette, Commercial, and Columbian, come to us scantily filled with reading matter, and with advertisements under the editorial head, for girls to learn the business. The Gazette says: "The strike is occasioned by the adoption of a new bill of prices by the "Typographical Union," in which an unwarrantable and wholly inadmissible assumption of a right to control the management of our office is made, together with a demand for increase of compensation, an increase which, whether it be reapensation, an increase which, whether it be rea-sonable or not, is made in such a spirit as leaves us no alternative but to reject it. The controversy is not about prices. Our present difficulty has grown solely out of our determination to manage our own affairs, without being compelled to ask the permission or to submit to the arbitrary rules of those we have employed to do our work. The "Union" adopted regulations for the government of our office, prescribing what should and what should not be done, and extended their interference even to the press room, with which, one would think, a typographical union could not properly concern itself. We have made arrangements to employ girls in our office. The inducements to learn this trade are great, as it pays much better than any of the employments now followed by wo-

The Commercial says: "The terms insisted upor The Commercial says: "The terms insisted upon by the journeymen printers, under the action of the Typographical Society—independent of any question in regard to wages—are such as cannot be conceded by any proprietor without such an abandonment of the control of his business affairs as cannot safely be submitted to. We have determined to employ females as compositors in our newspaper department, if they can be procured. The labor of type-setting is so light, and so well adapted to female lightness of hand and facility of adapted to lemale againess of hand and facility of motion, that it is surprising it has not already in a great degree been monopolized by them."

The following is from the Columbian: "This strike is not for an increase of wages only, but because employers refuse to submit the control of a large part of their printing business exclusively to the men they employ." The Columbian offers wages to girls who are willing to learn type-setting, and will engage to remain until they become skillful at the business, when it promises them a large remuneration.

The Connecticut "Financier."-The Nev fork Post says that Mr. C. L. North, of Meriden has been surrendered by his bail, and lodged in ail. It has transpired that he has taken in the in habitants of Meriden, and its vicinity, to the amount of $400,000, and has ruined numerous parties, who trusted him with their moneys. He has also taken in one of the New York express companies, who consented to take from him a draft on Washburn and Boies, of New York, for one on himself at Meriden.

The law under which he has been arrested in against him or not, as he steadily refuses to show what has become of his property.

Mr. C. L. North passed for a very pious man; being a member of a church, and carrying on a private banking business, succeeded in getting trusted to a large amount. A farmer in the neighborhood, who had recently sold his farm, placed the proceeds in this bank, and has lost it all. Many widows are also taken in; and one individual of the town has endorsed North's paper for $150,000, which will ruin him.

It was at length agreed that it should be aduel, and the weapons pistols. Seconds were chosen, and the preliminaries agreed on. To keep the courage of the principals from taking the direction of Bob Acres, and oozing out of their finger ends, they were privately informed that the pistols would be loaded only with powder. One evening in the latter part of last week the parties proceeded to the plank road, the ground was proceeded to the plank road, the ground was measured, and a pair of villainous-looking horse-pistols presented to the combatants, and the word given. At the discharge one of the parties, dexterously smearing his face with some red liquid, and uttering a groan, fell heavily to the ground; his opponent, astounded at the result, was coolly informed by his second that his pistol was loaded right; dropping his pistol, he rushed forward, imploring the wounded man to speak, but was answered only by groans, as if in great pain. Convinced that he had dangerously, if not fatally, ounded his antagonist, he started full run nake his escape, and next morning about daylight reached his brother's, about ten miles froi Camden. Here the whole family, including h mother, were startled by the revelation, and the brother, with all speed, came to Camden, and, taking up some funds, several hundred dollars his mother had in a bank, to employ counsel, &c., on behalf of his brother, came on to Germantown to ascertain the state of the wounded man, and found that his brother was the victim of a hoax.

Wolves.-The wolves of Maine seem to be nu merous and remarkably fierce, the present season. A correspondent of the Machias Union says that the accommodation stage and passengers from Rockland were a few days since driven back from the woods near Indian river, and detained over night by a large detachment of wolves. The Brunswick Telegragh relates that on Friday last, Col. Campbell of that town was chased by a pack of wolves while in the woods not half a mile from his nouse. Four of them came within twenty feet of axe; and his adversaries, after some reconnoiter ng and a few low growls of disapprobation, con-cluded to forego their anticipated breakfast, and beat a reluctant retreat.

Balances Due Government.-One of the ditors of the New York Express, writing from Washington, says:

The Secretary of the Treasury has been in corespondence with the comptrollers and auditors outhing the large outstanding balances due the United States. This indebtedness to the government amounts at this time to one hundred and on nillions five hundred and eighty-three thousand dollars, ($101,583,000,) and seventy millions is due from one branch of the service, or on the books of the comptrollers. The chief comptroller is called upon by the secretary to push these accounts to a settlement, and the comptroller, in turn, has been addressing letters of complaint and inquiry to auditors, &c. White Cravats and Vests .- In New York, white cravats and vests are out of date in fush onable circles. They are now the distinguishing adge of servants in attendance. However, a New York is not the centre of fashion, the full evening costume still prevails elsewhere. The editor of the New York Sunday Times, in alluding to the present fashion in that city, says: "A dandy friend of ours, who had for a few seasons given up parties, attended one recently, and wishing to honor the occasion in full dress, arrayed himself in his wedding suit, carefully preserved and was much chagrined on finding that he was the only man present besides the waiters who sported a vest and cravat."

Murder at the Falls .- The Lockport Couries Murder at the Falls.—The Lockport Convier is informed that a most horrible murder was committed near the Suspension Bridge on Sunday evening. It seems that a man named Thomas Costello was charged with stealing some money from a woman, and a man living near the bridge, whose name we have not learned, took the part of the woman. This enraged Costello, and just at eve, Sunday, he decoyed this man from his house to the bank of the river, where he pitched him over the precipice, killing him instantly. The marderer fled over the bridge into Canada, and at last accounts had not been taken.

Reverend Miss Brown opened the meeting with prayer. Several committees were appointed, and the rest of the forenoon was occupied by a speech from Mrs Ross.

The court-house was filled with persons from all parts of the county, and all seemed to feel sensibly during the progress of the awfully serious ceremony.—Richmond Dispatch.

Female Convicted of Murder.—The? Huntingdon (Pa.) Banner, of Saturday, gives an account of the trial, conviction and sentence of Mrs. Elizabeth Harker, for poisoning her sister. The evidence in the case, it is said, was very plain, and disclosed a fiendish transaction sufficient to make humanity shudder. It appears that the woman poisoned her own sister for the purpose of becoming her successor in the household!—at a time, too, when she was verging on sixty years of age! The judge sentenced her to be hung, and the public opinion is so much against her that probably no effort will be made to have her reprieved. In the early part of the trial, the prisoner seemed but little affected by her awful situation; but as proof after proof was elicited, fastening the guilt unmistakeably upon her, tears and sobs added not a little to the painful embarrassing duties of the court and counsel, and the solemnity of the scene. Prize Fight. PHENIXVILLE, Pa., Dec. 1.—The prize fight between Bradley, of Moyamensing, and Sloan, alias Sluggin, of Baltimore, came off to-day at 2 P. M., in Montgomery. After 14 rounds, lasting but 17 minutes, Sloan was declared vanquished, being unable to come to time. Sloan was badly hurt. A posse of officers went from this city, but all, except one, missed the right spot, and he was powerless.
